ABOUT US

New England Fishmongers is a fishermen-owned and operated seafood business, run by Captain Tim Rider and Kayla Cox.

We operate a commercial fishing vessel named Finlander II, which is homeported in Portsmouth, NH. From December through April, Finlander II catches sea scallops off the coast of Plum Island, Massachusetts. In the summer and fall, we catch groundfish (bottom-swelling species such as haddock, cod, pollock, halibut) using traditional hook-and-line methods.

On weekends, we can also be found selling our catch at various regional farmers markets and at Tendercrop Farms in Newbury, Wenham and Dover.

To source seafood that we cannot catch ourselves, we partner with local boats as well as fishermen we know from around the country. Our wild Louisiana shrimp are caught by Captain Lance Nacio out of Louisiana and we work with Yakobi Fisheries, out of Pelican, Alaska, for wild salmon, black cod, lingcod, spot prawns and rockfish.
